Dear Avram, shalom,

Just a few lines to thank you for your website and articles. It is a blessing and a real pleasure to read them! Praise Yahweh for having directed me here...

We both share the same views. With so many doctrines and denominations around, it is a real pleasure to find a brother with a sound doctrine and teachings that are biblical. It is not something that common to find in these last days!

I am still a baby in Messiah as I have only been saved 2 years and a month ago. I thank and praise Yahweh everyday for having saved my life. He blessed me by putting me in a situation where I could spend a lot of my time with Him and by putting on my path a brother who made a disciple out of me.

I'm in love with the Instructions Abba wrote on my heart the day He blew His Holy Breath on me. I have been keeping Shabbat, kosher (according to the Bible, not to the Jewish traditions!) and celebrating the Feasts since more than a year. Last year, I had the opportunity to celebrate some of them in the Land.

May Yahweh bless you and your loved ones. May His face shine upon you and His shalom be with you.

A bientôt!

Sir:

How thankful to my Lord for confirming to me by your article that I had heard His voice. Two years ago I threw away or destroyed all objects with the Star of David. It was heart wrenching. Had I heard correctly? Slowly, I learned about it's occult properties, from theosophy, freemasonry, Kabbalah, and witchcraft in general. But still I questioned sometimes, but yet I knew, but yet I was standing alone. And only this week I inquired of a great minister of God (now deceased) of his surviving ministry, one who had loved the Jewish people and Israel greatly, about the star. Sadly, this week, I received an article he wrote in 1975 in New Wine magazine, calling it 'an emblem that beautifully depicts this blending of God and man in Jesus as in the 6 pointed Star of David.' I admired this man's teaching greatly and it is truly foundational except for this.

He was Derek Prince. But he still was human and he always expressed if he was wrong, then he stood to be corrected. This is one of the very few times he has been wrong.

But how wonderful also to read about crosses, fish, Easter and Christmas and about the path becoming narrower and narrower, for I too threw out the crosses, fish and I no longer celebrate Christmas or Easter. It is in my heart that our Lord was crucified on Wednesday and rose Saturday at the end of the Sabbath for He said as with Jonah, 3 days and 3 nights...

I am truly thankful to have found your article! I stand alone in my surroundings on these issues with my family and what friends I have left. It is hard to find a church that does not have these symbols within their structures, so I am isolated somewhat....(I worship our Lord on the seventh day by myself).

Thank you, Sir, for I truly am grateful!

Praise God the Father of our Lord Yeshua!

Dear Avram,

I am an American Judeo-Christian believer who have been a Christian all my life (primarily evangelical), but have been connecting with the Jewish origin of Christianity for the past few years. I'm no Biblical/Torah scholar; nevertheless I have the Holy Spirit of God who dwells within me and has given me the ability to discern within reason.

I just wanted to share this tidbit with you. I have been innocently wearing both a Cross and Star of David together as a necklace. However, over the past few months, I have become strangely hesitant to wear my beloved necklace. Recently, for whatever reason, I have become increasingly curious about the origin of the 'Star of David;' also about why Jewish people are offended by the symbol of a cross.

Well, today during my personal study time, that strong curiosity concerning the Star of David occurred again. This time I began searching the Bible and then the web for an unbiased explanation about the symbol's origin. Like you, I couldn't find any Biblical description about the symbolic Star. As I searched online, obviously I was drawn to your article and read it in its entirety. The information you shared is compelling. Now I am unsure if I should wear either the cross or star. For me, when I wear the cross it (personally) symbolizes that Christ gave His life for me...and that my sins are forgiven. (I don't believe in wearing the crucifix because I believe the entire Biblical account about Jesus. The account does not end with him still hanging on the cross). Interestingly though...when I look at the Star of David it always reminds me of a symbol of witchcraft. I never understood why until I read your article today. Wow, what a revelation.

I felt the outcry of your heart as I read your article because I, too, desire to follow and live in a manner that is pleasing to our Creator. Thanks for sharing your insight and convictions.

Sincerely,

Sandra

Brother Avram,

Praise Yahveh for your website 'The Seed of Abraham.' I just found it Monday. I was born a Gentile and 'raised' in an Institutional Protest Church. I first came to Christ in the spring of 1974 but drifted away by my 21st birthday in 1979. For the next 25 years my life was a blur from the drugs and alcohol, which almost took my life. Things began to change, 4 years ago today, but I stumbled hard numerous times over the next 6 months. Again the alcohol and drugs almost did me in.

On that last drunk I heard God speaking to me and that's when I knew I was on the wide path and decided to return seeking the narrow path. I came to the Messianic thing from a person I was visiting in a prison. She spoke of her grandmother and mother being Messianic, Jews who believed in Jesus. I laughed and said that was silly but I still had to check it out. Wow, I had really found a way to the narrow path.

Of all the study sites I have been to, yours is by far the best and most straight forward. I want to take up your ordination process. Please pray for me for that.

Your brother in Yeshua,

Dear Avram, Shalom!

It is probably an impossible feat, trying to explain the value of having come across your website! I am a gentile believer in Yeshua, and a babe in faith. I have changed churches 3 times (a lot of members got tired of having discourses with me concerning the Scriptures). I live in Germany and though we have lots of churches in my vicinity, the Torah is not upheld that strongly: which was always a concern of mine and issue for the members, much of who I hold very dearly in my heart to this day.

In my third year of being in the faith, I finally wondered if I was perhaps the one stretching issues. No matter how sound in doctrine a denomination seemed to be, a bit was always missing: holiness but disregarding the dietary law; keep all laws but maintain an anti-Semitic attitude, etc etc. I won't go into the details of the frustration this has caused in my search. Finally, 6 weeks ago probably, it struck me for the first time to search out a Jew who believed in Yeshua and still kept Torah, believing his Hebrew roots would convey the Message more clearly.

Dearest Avram: you stated in an article (I think I've read fairly almost everything on your site, by the way) that it was 'important' but not 'essential' to learn Hebrew for a better understanding of the Scriptures.

Dear Avram: I believe strongly it is absolutely compulsory! Many things I've read out of Scriptures have taken on new meanings since I've started searching from a Hebrew perspective.

Please, I've ordered books, dictionary and software so I can start learning Hebrew. Ruti and you, could you please pray and intercede in prayer for me, that Yeshua haMashiach will sustain and help me carry through the learning, as I'm alone with my views of Scripture on the Torah out here, and that Yeshua will grant me the grace of understanding. I need your prayers urgently. Thank you so much for the articles. I can't explain the gratitude to Yeshua having showed me your wonderful site. If further correspondence is possible, I will be more than grateful.

In Messiah's Name,

Steve

I just want to say a heartfelt Thank You for your wonderful website. It is such a huge encouragement to me.

In brief: I'm a daughter of Avraham and Sarah, so not Gentile. But my forebears (followers of Yeshua since the early 1800s!) have so intermarried with Gentiles on both sides that I'm not Jewish either. And, oh dear, that has caused a lot of negativity with some so-called Messianic folk who think that as a non-Jewish person I should definitely not follow Torah. (One 'advisor' said I could keep my family's 'traditions' - Shabbat and kosher diet, but nothing else.)

Meanwhile, the Gentile church just wants to tell me that Torah has been abolished, full stop/period.

Just by reading the Scriptures, I have never been able to believe that.

Result: ostracism on both sides. I don't fit in anywhere. I call myself a Torah-observant Christian (who is neither Jew nor Gentile in Yeshua <smile>)...but I have felt like such a minority of one that, at times, I have doubted my integrity, intelligence, interpretation. Surely if I was right, then other people would have the same understanding?

And so it has been so good to read your website. I'm only about three-quarters of the way through at the moment, but wanted to break off to write this, feeling so encouraged and positive. One line that will always stay with me is, 'God is not a polygamist: He has ONE bride.'

Thank you for it all.

About eight years ago my wife and I had joined a nondenominational church and as time went on I become the small group leader for the pastors. I am the son of a deacon in a Baptist church and was raised by that faith. I had always questioned the Jewish part of the Bible and asked about the Old Testament but was told that it was not valid anymore. As I began to lead the pastors small group I once again started asking these questions and something did not seem right to me. I went to God in prayer and asked that he reveal to me the truth of things and use the Holy Spirit to guide me. Boy what a journey he sent me on. I discovered the Messianic Jews and started really learning everything that they had to offer. Finally after two more years of leading small groups God asked me to stop what I was doing because the truth was not there. I left and started attending a couple of Messianic congregations but I just could not agree with everything that they had put forth. About a week ago I asked God to show me that out there was at least something that would teach the full meaning of the truth as well as did one of my best friends.

My friend and I discovered your site and this is what we have been looking for. These teachings have to be started here where we live in San Antonio Texas! I believe that you are on the right track and every single thing that you say about the Messianics and the Christians are exactly what the Holy Spirit has been telling me and my best friend. I am not sure what to do next with this I want you to know that we support you fully and yes, you are on the right track. The Holy Spirit is dealing with me very deeply right now about this information that we have found being taught from you and we are excited. I am not sure what we are supposed to do with this but please pray for us because we are in deep prayer and excited that we found you. We do not fit in with the Messianics or the Christians so to find a teaching that we have been practically praying for is like finding gold!

Many Blessings,

Shabat Shalom Avram & Ruti!

A friend who I had shared my feelings about our 'Messianic Congregation' and shared with me about your web site! I was AMAZED to read the things that you wrote were exactly what our LORD had been putting on my heart. Naturally since our congregation is headed up by a 'rabbi' who is one of the 'head honcho's' of 'Chosen People Ministries' ... the enemy can easily use the Word of GOD that you hear behind you saying, 'This is the way...walk in it!' and cause you to think 'Maybe it's not really GOD calling me...'

And yet, for quite some time, just like you...just like our father Avraham...I have felt like the LORD has called me out of 'this movement' to THE ONE TRUE GOD AND HIS WORD! As you mentioned, it is not a 'popular' place to be called out into the wilderness 'alone' but like Sha'ul so many years ago found, our Blessed LORD will meet us there and show us HIS WAYS!

I sense the 'truth' of what you say as it feels as if 'deep has called to deep' and The Light of the world has illuminated the way and I know that it is the 'voice of the LORD' that I have heard!

Todah rabbah for sharing your testimony and thought on your web site...I am enjoying the 'gift' that EL SHADDAI has given to me on this erev Shabat through it!

May His face continue to shine upon you!

b'ahavat YESHUA, my LORD and KING!

Greetings Avram!

I just wanted to let you know that I recently did a very brief Bible Study based on the teaching that you published on Kingdom Violence (Matthew 11:12). The study was a tremendous success. Had it not been for your exhaustive analysis of this scripture, I would not have been able to change my view and the understanding of others re: its true meaning. Your teaching is invaluable!

Have a Blessed Day!

Dear Avram,

Thank you so much for your website, and your ministry, found it purely by chance (or was it?), I know my Father has been dealing with my heart about Torah, the feasts etc and of course I feel as if I am swimming upstream!

My friends I am sure are certain that I am losing the plot, and being raised in a Baptist church, and having been in mainstream Christianity for so long I sometimes wonder if I am indeed on the right road. I know that I have an overwhelming desire to please my Lord, to find out what His word says and obey, to love Him with all my heart, mind, soul and strength, to give Him all of me, a living sacrifice.

There are so many opinions out there, every one has a disagreement and sometimes it seems that ultimate truth is not to be found, but then I know that He is the Way the TRUTH and the Life...so there must be absolute truth and I want to search for it with all my heart. I read your article "leaving Messianic Judaism" and wow, it was like slipping into a glove that fit perfectly, I can't explain it but it was like one huge confirmation!!!!

I feel like I don't know where to from here, I don't feel like I quite belong anywhere at the moment, but I am trusting that He will lead me and keep me.

I would really like your help, on the chapters Lev 11 Deut 14 and Acts 10. Did Peters vision nullify the dietary laws concerning unclean animals? All my friends tell me so but there are so many ends that just don't tie up for me, but that is another e-mail all on its own!!!

Avram answers:

Briefly, if Peter's vision meant the dietary laws were done away with, then why don't we see Peter eating ham, or saying that the dietary laws were done away with? Visions are symbolic, as was the case of Pharaoh's dreams of the wheat stalks and the cows. In Acts 11:18 it again tells us what the vision meant. After the believers in Jerusalem had heard what Peter had done, they accosted him. Peter retold his story and here's what they said:

“When they heard this, they were silenced. And they praised God, saying, “Then God has given even to the Gentiles the repentance that leads to life.”” (Acts 11:18 NRSV)

Note well that not one mention of the dietary laws being done away with is spoken here. If it had to do with that, wouldn't it be written somewhere? Of course, but it didn't deal with the ending of the dietary laws but the inclusion of the Gentiles into the Kingdom...a very radical concept which didn't take place till 9-10 years after the Resurrection as Acts 10 is generally seen to be that many years later. Now, here what Peter says in Acts 10 about the vision and coming to Cornelius:

“and he said to them, “You yourselves know that it is unlawful for a Jew to associate with or to visit a Gentile; but God has shown me that I should not call anyone profane or unclean.” (Acts 10:28 NRSV)

“Then Peter began to speak to them: “I truly understand that God shows no partiality, but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him.” (Acts 10:34-35 NRSV)

You might want to read this which further reveals The Hebraic Perspective to Scriptures which the Church uses to bolster its anti-Law theology:

Thank you for your time Avram and may the Lord continue to bless you, Ruti and your ministry,

Hello!

I am happy and blessed to have come across your website...as a gentile Christian, you have certainly opened my eyes to many things...I have a question, and perhaps you can help me with them...

How do Jewish women observe the Torah? I'm trying to understand how to live with a more tangible existence of the Torah in my life, and I'm not quite sure how to do it...some of the 'laws,' if you will, seem to not apply to my Western world...this may just be my ignorance!

Avram asks: what laws might that be?

Also, what additional readings or commentaries on the Torah do you recommend?

Avram replies:

Just the Torah for now...let His Word sink into your heart and mind and be the foundation for what He thinks. I would recommend this: read the Torah, then the NT. Read the Torah, then the NT. Do that for a year so that they both become part of you in a much greater way. Then when you read commentaries or hear people talk, you'll know right away if they're speaking from God or themselves. A bank teller knows immediately when they're handling a counterfeit note. How? Is it because they are so familiar with counterfeit notes? No. It's because all day long they are accustomed to the true notes so that when a false one passes into their hands, they can immediately tell the difference.

Blessings, and Thank you Janisha,

Avram Yehoshua

Thank you so much!

hello,

erev rishon! My brother had printed up several articles from your site and we sat at the dining room table for most of the night reading through them and discussing them. i was amazed and relieved that i wasn't the only one who held such ideas and convictions concerning what is biblical and what isn't.

i must say, however, that there are two particular points that i either do not agree with at this time, or just do not have any conviction about, but, i will definately remember these things in prayer. in fact, while reading them, i did happen to say, 'ummmm, Abba, what do you think about this?' from time to time, being Jewish, i am sure you can imagine what those two things might be.

without much detail, my spiritual walk with the Living God has been a roller coaster for roughly 26 years until May of 2007. when i was about 12 i was allowed to find my religion of choice (my family was agnostic and not practicing Jews). when i was 18, the church i was involved with became known as a cult and ended up on a nation-wide television news program called 48 hours. needless to say i was shaken, turned my back on church, and pursued my Jewish roots.

i attended a Conservative Synagogue, but during our services i would be interrupted with thoughts like, 'Hey! Who does this remind you of?' or 'Now, isn't that just familiar?' it's difficult to turn away from someone when they keep following you and talking at you. after about 7 years a denial, i finally prayed about Yeshua, saying something along the lines of, 'Okay, i can see that He is the Messiah. But now what?' i did not know how to reconcile the perceived differences and contradictions between 'old' and 'new' covenants. in fact, to this very day, i have some difficulties with things in Paul's writings, just as 2 Peter says would happen, but i prayerfully keep from trying to interpret them without certainty. i would rather stick with 'i don't know' than to say 'i know' and be wrong. the important thing, though, is that i am locked into Mashi'ach Yeshua, and I am Torah Observant.

so, i was a 'rogue' Meshichi, and still attending Conservative Synagogue, since there were no Messianic Congregations to be found. i did not put much trust in 'regular army' christianity. i lived in a lot of fear, not being in any real fellowship, and wondering if what i was learning and believing were correct. i was still under the cloak of letting 'leaders' interpret the meaning of scripture for me, and since i had lost confidence and trust in the 'leadership' i was pretty much on my own, prayerfully, but with uncertainty.

one big change in my walk, leading to more confidence, was receiving a birthday present. i'm a bibliophile, i love books, especially old ones. my former mother-in-law had acquired an old edition (1800s) of The Christian Doctrine by John Milton. she had gotten it for me while i was still turned away from Messiah, and i didn't read it until a couple of years after i accepted Yeshua as Mashiach. though i do not recall much of what was written, one thing did stand out to me. John Milton was of the impression that we were all responsible for our own souls. that it was up to us to learn the Word of God. we were responsible to learn the proper modes of interpretation and to let scripture speak for scripture. at first this sounded like a difficult task, even a little unnerving to me, but he was correct and confirming to something i was already contemplating, just as your site has been confirming to the things i have been contemplating myself for the last year while attending Messianic Synagogue and listening to their teachings, but every time i would bring things up in study, i would get 'shot down.'

i am Jewish, but to me, the Messianic Movement shouldn't be 'Jewish.' i would say this, but be misunderstood, and when trying to explain myself, receive the 'talmudic method' of interruption. i would hardly get a word in edgewise and the subject would change rather quickly. and i am amazed at when i would quote plain text of scripture it would be just as easily dismissed with 'are you certain that is how it is interpreted? it could also mean...' for fear of lifting myself up in pride i keep my trap shut, but i just want to say, 'Come on, man! you know i have studied rabbinical interpretation long before you were even aware of the Jewishness of Yeshua!' (he's a former foursquare member). it bothers me sometimes, because our Rabbi likes that i have all this 'knowledge', but only when it confirms his notions of teachings. i think i will leave it at that. i'm sure you get the picture.

others in our synagogue have read through your site as well. being a Shammash in the congregation, i was asked to look into your site, because many things other members were discovering from the site seemed to have caused questioning. i am very protective of our congregation, and would jealously defend our members. i am not saying i would rule or dominate over anyone, just that with my experiences with cults and odd-ball theologies, i stand watch on behalf of those who may not be aware of them. now, what to do since i agree thus far with your site? keep our congregation in prayer, Chavurath ha Mashiach. i have a feeling something is going to go on and we may be in for a bumpy ride. if i am made to take sides, know that i will take the side of Elohim Chayim and of His Mashi'ach Nagid, Yeshua.

anyways, i went through this whole thing just to simply say, that personally, i am blessed and relieved by your site. He answers prayer, and once again, i have a new dose of confidence in His Word.

many blessings in Yeshua,

John B.

Dear Avram,

I have read some of your articles and find them to have real importance. Your style seems to me to be highly linear, sequential and rational. And this is very good as it yields clear and measured results.

I pray that your efforts to serve the God of Israel will be blessed in an abundance of fruitfulness,

Shalom to you! (in its most sincere and deepest HEBREW meaning)

I just wanted to let you know that your recent message about the "Messianic Movement" moved me to tears – NOT IN GRIEF OR SADNESS – but in utter relief!

There have been sooo many times that my husband and I have painfully shared many of the words contained in your letter (some of them verbatim) while sipping our coffee after dinner. We have spent years and traveled many miles seeking a group with which to affiliate. We have been stricken with grief and disappointment to see our Jewish brothers and sisters casually dismissing plain and essential Scriptures while ferociously and tenaciously grasping at erroneous or pagan traditions and teachings.

We are the leaders of a congregation called Beit Goyim – located in North Bergen, NJ, USA. We have been called to lead truth seekers from the nations out of the pagan based Christian churches and INTO TORAH. What we have been observing is a real desire for truth among the people near us. While there are some believing Jews among us, most of our congregation is made of people from Latin American and South American origins. They have told us that they, too, have been disappointed with pastors and messianic rabbis making compromises and even giving false first impressions. They tell us that they are beginning to grow weary from the hypocrisy and even carelessness when it comes to the Word of Adonai.

We truly have been attacked (sometimes viciously) from all sides for a number of years. The reason for the venomous attacks is our love of PURE Torah (without traditions and without Western Christian culture and errors imprinted on us). Although your teachings are a bit more scholarly, and your research a little more detailed, it seems that the Ruach has given our ministry some excellent foundational teachings that align with yours.

Please understand that I pause at this point—The reason is simple yet very strong. We have personally experienced the “Torah Observant” mask of many ministries; only to find out (much later) that there was no Torah knowledge or observance at all. Other times, the ministry turned out to be “Talmud Observant” with very little else. I have not had time to fully study all of your other very detailed messages, but I am not completely certain that our ministries are 100% co-laborers in preparing Yeshua’s bride. However - so far I am very encouraged and excited by what I have read today!

You will most likely be receiving some correspondence from my husband in the very near future.

In the love and service of our beloved Messiah, Yeshua,

Kelly
